Edwin Payne, living on Luce Hill, had quite an exciting experience just at dusk one day last week, when he was attacked by a yearling buck deer. Payne had gone to his orchard to bring home a load of apples and was picking up a bag of the fruit when the deer executed a flank attack and followed this up by a charge from the front. After some minutes of wrestling up and down the orchard, the disturbance was heard by neighbors and the deer captured. It seems that the buck was either peevish at having the apples removed, or that he wanted to put Mr. Payne out of business before the deer season opened.
